DESCRIPTION: An unusual private cemetery sited on flat land beyond the edge of the village of Barnsley. The entrance is on the west side, with a gate off the northeast corner of Taylor Avenue. The graves all face east, so present the backs of the headstones to visitors. The oldest graves are possibly 19th Century. The pleasant setting is enhanced by some fine trees. The cemetery is well cared for.
MODIFICATIONS:
PRESENT USE: Cemetery
HISTORICAL NOTES: This cemetery was established by the family of William Johnston of Barnsley, who selected 880 acres at Barnsley to raise cattle. (Date of selection & date of death to be recorded). The selection eventually reduced by sale & gift, but the cemetery block kept on by descendants, and still actively cared for.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE: The Johnston family were well known early settlers of the Barnsley community. The cemetery contains the graves of several members of the family, and other people from the community, including one victim of the mine disaster at Bellbird in 1923. As a privately founded cemetery, still in private hands, this cemetery is very unusual. The site, with several interesting headstones and a number of fine trees, makes a considerable contribution to the Barnsley landscape. RECOMMENDATION: Record the register (or the burials if necessary) & invite the National Trust Cemeteries Committee to assess the site for classification. Regional Significance - low Local Significance - high

DESCRIPTION: The 1910 building has a "T" shaped gabled roof with wide eaves and shingled gable ends. It is clearly a product of Vernon's tenure as Government Architect. Lean-to enclosed porches on either side of the leg of the "T" have unusual roofs continuing the main roof pitch but hipped at the ends. Two brick chimneys have simple corbelled decoration. No windows on west side. Site contains a c1940s portable classroom of interest.
MODIFICATIONS: Very few to the 1910 building. Various other buildings added without compromising the original layout.
PRESENT USE: State Primary School
HISTORICAL NOTES: Barnsley school (then called Trialba or Teralba) founded on a different site c1865 in slab & bark hut. 1st school washed away in a flood & replaced 1872 (site not known). The existing school on present site was opened in 1910.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE: Modest buildings of Barnsley school contrast with the grander scale & conception of West Wallsend school not far away, reflecting the lesser size & civic importance of Barnsley. The 1910 building is an example of Vernon's influence as a designer, translated to a simple timber country schoolhouse, but still recognisable. (Compare with West Wallsend Post Office - item WW-13, also from Govt. Archt.) The c1940s portable building at north end of the site may also be important.
RECOMMENDATION: Investigate date and origins of the portable classroom & include in schedule if significant.
